

NOVEMBER 9th

On this day in...

2002: 5.68 inches of precipitation fell in Idyllwild, the greatest daily amount on record for November. Incredibly, no rain at all fell just on the other side of the mountain in Palm Springs.

1982: Seven tornadoes touched down in the LA Basin. Three of the tornadoes began as waterspouts off Pt. Mugu, Malibu, and Long Beach. The Long Beach waterspout moved ten miles inland. Two of the tornadoes were in Garden Grove and Mission Viejo. Property damage occurred, especially with the Long Beach waterspout/tornado.

1956: This day is the latest recorded date in the year to reach at least 100° in Santa Ana.

1937: 2.68 inches of rain fell in San Diego, the fifth wettest calendar day on record and the wettest November day on record.

1917: It was 88° in Victorville, the highest temperature on record for November. This also occurred on 11/6/1980.

1914: In Bagdad rain finally fell on this day ending an incredible dry spell at 767 days that started on 10/3/1912 (Southern Pacific RR employees kept this debated record).

1879: 2.75 inches of rain fell on this day and on 11/10 in San Diego, the wettest 24-hour amount on record for November.
